Description :

Prsentation de l'diteur Succumb to the irresistible mythologies built around the beauty of evil. Surrender to the temptations of the flesh, its vampiric shades, its mouth-watering energy. And submit to the epistolary colour Red: blood, wine, sex, desire, fire...in Walter Ruhlmanns haunting yet sanguine collection of poetry,

CARMINE CARNIVAL. Et l'indépendance de son esprit naturel de Walter le conduit à loucher vers la poésie d'ailleurs, anglo-saxonne, pays d'îles et parfois de soleil, à travers ses traductions et ses poèmes qu'il nous retourne comme autant de preuves de son amour de la liberté. His natural independent mind drives him to look at the poetry from other parts of the world, mostly poetry in English, from these lands of islands and sun sometimes, a poetry he translates and renders to us as many proofs of his yearning for freedom. ~ Patrice Maltaverne, French publisher, reviewer and poet.
