Description :

Prsentation de l'diteurAn amazing way for busy academics to publish regularly in journals using web 3.0 tools.This eBook presents a simple but comprehensive model, so that you rest assured that you have done everything possible to make an impact with your research, in an attempt to generalize what successful academics seem to be doing and others do not.'Publish in journals 3.0: From Manuscript to Citations' aims to persuade academics to present their ideas and innovation in a better way to be disseminated and used by society, and why not, to help you to improve your curriculum and stand out.There are many books already written on how to publish in journals, to identify a suitable journal or to write a paper. This eBook does not replace them, because it is focused on how you can holistically and effectively organize your impact, written from a professional/practitioner perspective for other busy academics and researchers.
